Constitution of the Silver Lake Improvement Association.

To the Bloomfield Citizen:

I take the liberty of enclosing you the constitution of the Silver Lake Improvement Association as passed by resolution of that Association on Monday evening last trusting that it will find a place in your valuable paper.

- This Association is composed of citizens of Silver Lake and that desirable part of Bloomfield known as Fair View, who, realizing that the cloud under which they have been resting contains a silver lining, propose to lift the same. Respectfully,

WM. R. HANNA, Sec'y.

This organization shall be and is hereby styled and known as the Silver Lake Improvement Association.

The objects of the Association and the purposes for which it is formed are hereby

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake and vicinity, the blessings, benefits and worthy repu'ation conferred by the development of religious interests and activity, promising the hearty encouragement and judicious support of its members to all efforts looking to the moral and social elevation of the commu-

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake, and vicinity, that essential to the making of good citizens and keeping them good, and that birthright of all Americans, the most improved and liberal system of public school instruction.

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake and vicinity the growth and maintenance of a high and healthy public sentiment, seeking the enforcement of law, the preservation of order, and the discouragement of vice, and to that end we shall oppose by all honorable means the introduction and settlement among us of drinking saloons, gambling dens, and disorderly houses.

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake and vicinity the comfort at home and renown abroad, accruing from good roadbeds, substantial sidewalks, suitable lighting and drainage of the streets, the planting of shade and ornamental trees, and the beautifying and cultivation of private grounds.

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake and vicinity the establishment of a Post Office with all the rights, privileges, and advantages by it conferred, in a convenient and accessible place.

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake and vicinity improved and additional railroad facilities, including a convenient and accessible depot, a proper and rational adjustment of the passenger tariff, a due observance of our rights in common with those of other patrons of the road.

To secure to the inhabitants of Silver Lake and vicinity the prosperity and progress and profit which, flows from the emigration and residence of all law abiding, industrious, and enterprising people.

A Startling Sensation.

S. D. Smith, trainmaster on the New York Third Avenue Elevated Railroad, living at 130 East 123rd Street, New York. writes us: "To say that the feelings, the sensations I experienced were startling, expresses mildly; but, thanks to Paxine, I again take some interest in life. I think I had about as bad a case of dyspepsia as a man can have and exist. My digestive apparatus seemed to have lost all power to act, and the many highly recommended remedies with which I dosed myself did not aid it. Paxine has proved a wonderful remedy in my case, and I feel confident that it has completely restored my health." Paxine is sold by the druggists, or delivered free by express to any address in the United States on re-ceipt of price, 50c. and $1.00 a bottle. In-structive pamphlet mailed free. The Dennis M'f g. DISTURTED MODES OF SPEECH

"Medical Greek," "Dog Latin" and Other Jargens-London Cadgers' Dialects. It may be interesting to glance at a subject closely connected with that of artificial lauguage the attempts that have been made to twist existing forms of speech into such new shapes as would form a new tongue. These efforts have been exhibited chiefly by persons who were anxious to have the use of a language which only themselves and their chosen friends should be able to speak or understand. Most famous of these distorted modes of speech is that which is variously known in England as "Medical Greek," "St. Giles' Greek" and "marrowskying." This consists of transposing all the initial consonants in a sentence, and it does, when spoken fast, give the effect of an unknown jargon. Thus in Medical Greek a mutton chop is a chutton mop, a bull dog is a dull bog, butterfly is a flutterby and so on. It is a very simple matter to acquire a great degree of facility in speaking this lingo, but very difficult to understand it readily when spoken fast. The following familiar verse, beginning "Hush, my babe, he still and slumber," rendered into Medical Greek, will serve as a good specimen of the dia-

> Bush, hy mabe, stie lill sand lumber. Aily honegels buard gy thed; Blevenly hessings nithout wumber, Fently jawling on i y thead. It will be observed that when a word begins with two consonants only one of them need be taken. I have also spelled phonetically those words where the ordinary rules would give a, wrong sound. The name "Medical Greek" comes from the fact that this dialect has long been in use among the medical students at the London hospitals, who find it convenient when they wish to speak to each other in the presence of a patient without his being able to understand them. It is also largely spoken by the students of the London university.

At Winchester college the students employ a form of what is known in this country as Latin." It consists of repeating the vel of every syllable and prefixing to that vowel the letter g, accenting this additional syllable. Thus, "Can you go with me?" would be "Cagan yougou gogo wigith mege?" The Winchester boys call this the "Ziph" language, and it is probably of considerable antiquity. De Quincey learned it in his youth, and Dr. Wilkins in his work describes it as a well known device for making a conversation secret.

A less complicated jargon prevails at some of the other English schools, consisting simply of adding the syllable vis to each word. Thus, "Willvis vouvis govis withvis mevis?" This resembles the "ugry igry ogry" dialect of American school girls, familiar to every one. In France, the boys add the syllable dregue in the same way: Thus, vonsdregue avezdregue tortiregue for vous avez tort.

Two secret dialects are employed by the London cadgers, and only long practice can make them intelligible to one who has not been born and bred in the precinct of St. Giles. The first of these is called "Back Slang," and consists theoretically in spelling backward the principal words in a sentence. But as the orthographical notions of the average cadger are, to say the least, eccentric; and as many of the words which were originally formed in this way have been greatly altered in use, the vocabulary of a cadger is practically a new language, uncouth and unintelligible to all except his own companions. For instance, penny in back slang is yenep; a pint is tenip, namesclop means a policeman, and gennet ten shillings. The other dialect spoken by the street vagabonds of London is known as the rhyming slang, which is described by an English writer as "the substitution of words and sentence which rhyme with other words intended to be kept secret. It transforms into a rough speech the various odds and ends of old songs, ballads and street nicknames which are suitable to the purpose." The same author gives a list of examples. Thus frog and toad means "the road;" finger and thumb means "rum;" cat and mouse

"a house," and I'm affoat "a loat." Back slang plays an important part in the lower forms of French argot, in the peculiar slang spoken by Spanish thieves and called germania; in the German rothwelsch and in the Italian furbesco. In fact the author of a slang dictionary, published in London in 1864, shows that the same principle runs through the jargon of the Bazeegars, or wandering jugglers in Hindustan, and cites a number of interesting examples to prove it.-H. T. Peck, Ph. D., in Home Journal.

Engineers' Paralysis.

"It's a strange fact, but nevertheless true." said a railroad engineer to me as we were whirling over the track between Lake Elmo and St. Paul, "that more engineers have been paralyzed during the past year than in any year since railroads were first started. There's a train that runs from St. Paul to Stillwater, on the Omaha, that we call the hospital train, for every man that runs with it has either had a stroke of paralysis or has been injured in some way or other. A scientist stated that the paralytic strokes were due in a manner to the rapidity with which the trains run nowadays, the constant motion and nervous strain breaking a man down."--Pioneer Press.

Spider Web Paper.

The Hon. George West, of Balston Spa, is in possession of a curiosity in paper sent him by a friend in Hong Kong, China. It is a sheet 11 by 14 inches made from the web of the "sacred white spider" of the Flowery Kingdom. It is as light as air and almost as transparent. but is also beautifully printed, and contains about the equal of two columns of matter, giving in English the story of "How Midshipman Copplestone was Present at the Court of Pekin." Mr. West has made the manufacture of paper his life work and study, but it is safe to say that he never ran a spider web paper factory. - The Saratogian.

Alaskan Indian Women. There is one prerogative of the Alaskan Indian women that I must not fail to note as showing their perfect equality with the men. Every one knows how common a vice polygamy is among savages (a theme on which many moral writers dwell, and throws stones without stopping to observe the large amount of Mornion glass in our own national conservatory), and in this lack of morality the Alaskans are fully up to the average savage standard; but it is not confined wholly to plural wives; occasionally some lone, forsaken female rises in the majesty of her right and

The Milk offered is warranted perfectly pure, and is from imported Jersey Calle.

The Cattle are fed on the PAST of hay and feed, no feed being allowed that would impair the healthfulk is of the Milk. The stables and cattle are kept in the most perfect manner as to Cleanliness a Ventilation—a most important factor if healthy milk is desired. As a table arrive and beverage it recommends itself, showing a larger percentage of cream than any other Milk sold. For invalids and children it is recommended by all physicians. MILK IN GLASS HAS THE FOLLOWING ADVANTAGES:

1st. It is more cleanly not being exposed to odors and contamination to blow dust and dirt, to the rain, to the drip and dirt from the reins or hands of the drive 2d. Its quality may be seen at a glance by the cream at the top, and the color 3d. It will keep sweet lower, because in delivering there is no churning bottle being filled to the stopper and the bottles are kept iced in warm weather unla

4th. Its flavor is better, because the air has no chance to act upon it, and be cause it is absolutely free from the metallic flavor often noticed in milk transported Parties wishing to be served on call at farm in Bloomfield, or send postal to JOHN F. MAXFIELD, Bloomfield, N. J
